15 May 2015

Thank you so much for your submission to the NMUN•NY 2015 video contest. We were very impressed with the efforts of all the delegations to document and share highlights of your NMUN•NY conference experience, whether or not your video won an award.

Applications are reviewed by a committee that looks at several aspects of the videos including quality, creativity, and content. The decisions this year were extremely difficult as we received many more video entries than our resources allow us to award. In fact, this year’s entries were so strong that we decided to award a third $500 scholarship.

Here’s a complete list of winners (in alphabetical order, by category):

Bundeswehr University Munich (Germany) - $1000 scholarship
Université Libre de Bruxelles (Belgium) - $1000 scholarship

College André-Grasset (Canada) - $500 scholarship
Community College of Aurora (United States) - $500 scholarship
Mercy College (United States) - $500 scholarship

Illinois State University (United States) – Honorable Mention
Manhattan College (United States) - Honorable Mention
New Mexico State University (United States) – Honorable Mention

The scholarship awards may only be used as a credit towards next year’s delegate fees. As mentioned in the contest form, no cash awards are given. We acknowledge that these awards cover only a small part of a delegation’s overall conference costs but hope they will be a welcome addition to other fundraising initiatives.

The video contest winners and honorable mention entries are posted on our YouTube channel at http://www.youtube.com/user/nationalmodelun. We appreciate your extensive work in creating these videos which provide a unique way to explain the NMUN conference to future delegates. Please feel free to contact us at info@nmun.org if you have any questions.

Thank you again, and we look forward to seeing you at next year’s conference!

Jess Hopeman
Program Associate
NCCA/NMUN

The NCCA/NMUN is a Non-Governmental Organization associated with the United Nations Department of Public Information and a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization of the United States.